FRUITS AND VEGETABLES FOR HEALTH AND LONG LIFE

Pranab Kumar Ghosh, A.S. Rajput and Ramesh Chandra Parida

Malnutrition has emerged as one of the most serious problems for mankind today. Most people are deficient in the frontline nutrients that are provided by the various essential vitamins and minerals. This is because a large number of people do not include the right quantities of various vegetables and fruits, in their daily meals. The current year (2021) has been declared by the United Nations as the International Year of Fruits and Vegetables (IYFV) to generate awareness about the same. This occasion should be utilized by the agriculture and food scientists to create awareness about the nutritive value of various fruits and vegetables and which ones must people opt for to meet their nutritional requirements properly. They should be made aware that the costly and tasty ones are not necessarily more nutritious and that nature provides the right type of food in a region that is suitable to meet the nutritional demands of the locals. So, they must choose those and need not opt for exotic ones. For example: 'An apple a day keeps the doctor away' is a common saying. No doubt, apples are healthy, but Guava, available almost all over our country, is nutritionally far superior to apples. Similarly, Ber gives 20 times more vitamin C than orange juice in equivalent quantities. Root and tuber vegetable crops can easily substitute for cereals in view of high carbohydrate and calorie supply. 100 grams each of cassava and rice (dry weight basis) releases 386 and 397 calories of energy. The vitamin A quantity in mango is equal to that of butter. West indian cherry has an exceptionally high content of ascorbic acid-1300 mg/100g. High carotene carrots (one or two in a week) are enough to compensate for our vitamin requirements. Amla contains 20 times as much vitamin C as the orange juice.

The World Health Organisation (WHO) recommends consuming at least 400 grams of fruits and vegetables each day or five servings of 80 grams each are beneficial for human beings for their health and nutrition. In 2017, some 3.9 million deaths worldwide were attributed to not eating enough fruits and vegetables (WHO, 2019). Insufficient intake of fruits and vegetables is estimated to cause around 14% of deaths from gastro-intestinal cancer worldwide; about 11% of those due to ischemic heart disease and about 9% of those caused by stroke.

Therefore, it is justified for the United Nations to declare 2021 as the International Year of Fruits and Vegetables (IYFV) with the aim to raise the awareness of the nutritional and health benefits of consuming more fruits and vegetables as a part of a diversified, balanced and healthy diet and lifestyle as well as to direct policy makers to give attention for

CAREER AS WASTE MANAGEMENT PROFESSIONAL

Nidhi Prasad

There are few things certain in life - one is death, second is change and the other is waste." No one can stop these things from happening in our lives. But with better management we can prepare ourselves.

What is WASTE?

Any material which is not needed by the owner, producer or processor is waste. Generally, waste is defined as at the end of the product life cycle. Most businesses define waste as "anything that does not create value". In a common man's eye anything that is unwanted or not useful is garbage or waste.

This term generally relates to all kinds of solid or liquid waste generated at the time of extraction of raw materials, processing of raw materials into final products and from other human activities. This practice is intended to decrease the adverse effects of harmful waste on the health of human beings as well as the environment.

Waste management is critical to human development and health outcomes, especially during the COVID-19 pandemic. The hit of the COVID-19 pandemic has increased the production of waste and so the challenges around waste management, especially medical waste and non-medical household waste have increased.

The lockdowns, stay-at-home policies, have increased the consumption and production of products such as gloves, masks, sanitizers, thermometers, toilet paper, cleaning products, and food items. Every household is producing more waste than ever before. The increased generation of plastic waste can be attributed to online delivery, panic buying, stock piling, and PPE disposal.

At the same time, there are factors that are discouraging the plastic recycling sector such as the slump in oil prices, transport restrictions, and staff shortage due to pandemic.

Suddenly the country's waste management infrastructure is unduly burdened and is creaking under pressure. There are multiple challenges being faced by institutions, hospitals, and care centres in the light of COVID.

- Are our citizens aware on managing household medical waste in this COVID-19 situation?
- Are cities ready with their waste management plans?
- Are biomedical waste management firms ready to handle the extremely hazardous, heaps of biomedical waste our country is going to generate?

Inadequate waste management arrangements are not just threating to the environment at large, but also can catalyst reducing loss and waste of those highly perishable items.

Fruits and vegetables are the edible parts of plants (i.e. seeds, flowers, buds, leaves, stems, shoots and roots), either cultivated or harvested wild, in their raw state or in a minimally processed form. These are a vital part of cuisines around the world.

Benefits of eating fruits and vegetables

1. Health benefits

Fruits and vegetables have multiple health benefits. They strengthen the immune system, combat malnutrition and help prevent many diseases (Table 1). Some reports about recent experiments on health benefits of fruits and vegetables are mentioned below:

- Children's growth and development: Fruits and vegetables are rich in vitamin A, calcium, iron, and folate which can promote good health, strengthen a child's immune system and help to protect against diseases. Parents around the world should try to persuade their children to eat the greens/fruits on their snacks rather than junk food. Fruits and vegetables help children's growth; support body functions and physical, mental and social wellbeing at all ages.
- Longer life: People who eat more fruits and vegetables live longer than those who do not, according to a study conducted in 10 European countries.
- Better mental health: Eating 7-8 servings a day (more than the recommended minimum of 5 servings) is linked to lower risk of depression and anxiety.
- Healthy heart: Fibre and antioxidants in fruits and vegetables can help prevent cardiovascular disease.
- Lower cancer risk: In 128 (out of 156 dietary studies) cases, consuming fruits and vegetables were found to lower the risk of lungs, colon, breast, cervix, oesophagus, oral cavity, stomach, bladder, pancreas and ovarian cancer.
- Lower obesity risk: A number of studies have observed a lower risk of adiposity and obesity in certain groups who consume fruits and vegetables.
- Lower diabetes risk: A systematic review and meta-analysis found higher green leafy vegetables and higher fruit intake were associated with significant reduction in type 2 diabetes risk.
- Better gut health: A diet rich in fruits, vegetables and other high fibre plant-based foods improve gut bacteria diversity and tends to increase bacteria associated with anti-inflammatory compounds which is linked with improved metabolism. Higher consumption of fruits and vegetables has also been shown to decrease the prevalence of diverticulosis as well as other digestive problems such as gas, constipation and diarrhoea.
- Improved immunity: Adequate intake of fruits and vegetables may reduce the severity of some infectious diseases. Though they will not protect us against a virus e.g., COVID-19, recovery from infectious disease is better when consuming fruits and vegetables than with diets low in this food group.

They are also rich in phyto-chemicals that have antioxidant functions and protect our body from degenerative diseases. Table 2 indicates how the fruit and vegetables are the rich reservoir of nutrients!

Cultivating fruits and vegetables contributes to a better quality of life for the farmer's family. It generates more income, creates better livelihoods, improves food security and nutrition and enhances the sustainable management of the local resources.

Another interesting part - the colours of fruits and vegetables are often linked to the nutrients and phyto-chemicals, that these contain (Table 3).

Production scenario of fruits and vegetables

In 2018, the world produced a total of 868 million tonnes of fruits and 1089 million tonnes of vegetables. The main fruits in order of importance were banana, citrus, melons, apple and grapes; similarly, the main vegetables were tomato, onion, garlic, cabbage, cauliflower, broccoli and cucumber. East Asia followed by South Asia is the world's main producing region of both fruits and vegetables. The world is producing more fruits and vegetables - but still not enough. In 2000, world production totalled just 306 grams per person per day; whereas this has been raised to 390 grams by 2017 (FAO 2020).

It is a matter of pride that India is the second largest producer of fruits as well as vegetables in the world. The country ranks at first position in the production of banana, mango, lime and lemon, papaya and okra. According to the 'Horticulture Statistics at a Glance-2018' by the Government of India, India produced 97.35 million tonnes of fruits and 184.40 million tonnes of vegetables.

Fruits and vegetables are typically more profitable than staple crops for a given area of land. They open opportunities for small farmers to take advantage of rising demand and to earn more money by producing and marketing fruits and vegetables. Women, in particular, can benefit as they are frequently engaged in fruits and vegetables production and marketing. The COVID-19 pandemic has highlighted the importance of home gardens, kitchen gardens, nutrition gardens and even rooftop gardens.

Highlights of the 77th Edition of Mann Ki Baat

- COVID-19 has been the biggest pandemic in the last hundred years and the country is fighting against it with all her might. This is a crisis that has plagued the whole world and many people have lost their loved ones. Even big countries were not spared from its devastation. In the midst of this pandemic, India is moving forward with the resolve of 'सेवा और सहयोग'- 'service and cooperation'. In the first wave, we fought courageously; this time too India will be victorious in the ongoing fight against the virus. Be it 'दो गज की दूरी' social distancing, rules related to masks or vaccines, there should be no let-up in our efforts. This indeed is the path to our victory.
- At this very moment of challenge, to facilitate transportation of Oxygen, Indian Railways has stepped forward. Oxygen Express (Oxygen rail) has transported larger quantities of Oxygen to all corners of the country, faster than Oxygen tankers travelling by road. Mothers and sisters would be proud to hear that one Oxygen express is being run fully by women. Shirisha Gajni, a loco pilot of Oxygen Express, with her entire team comprising of women, is running this Oxygen express. During corona times, many women like you have come forward to give strength to the country to fight the pandemic. Ferrying normal goods is a different matter. Oxygen is a very delicate thing. Shirisha ji got support from the Indian Railways as she was given green path to transport Oxygen timely and covered 125 kilometres in just 90 minutes.
- Empty tankers are being flown to Oxygen plants by Air Force planes. At the same time, work on construction of new oxygen plants too is being completed. Along with that, Oxygen, Oxygen concentrators and cryogenic tankers from abroad also are being brought into the country. In this task the Indian Navy, the Air Force, and the Army and institutions like DRDO are also involved. Many of our scientists, industry experts, and technicians too are working on a war footing.
- In normal circumstances, the country used to produce 900 Metric Tonnes of liquid medical Oxygen in a day. Now, it has expanded to generating more than 10 times the normal output and producing around 9,500 Metric Tonnes per day.

7 Years of the Government

Friends, whatever we have accomplished in these 7 years, it has been of the country, of the countrymen. Together, we have experienced many moments of national pride in these years. When we observe that now India moves ahead not with the thought and pressure of other countries but with her own conviction, then we all feel proud. When we witness that now India gives a befitting reply to those who conspire against us, then our confidence soars. When India does not compromise on the issues of national security, when the strength of our armed forces increases, we feel that yes, we are on the right path

- At the beginning of the pandemic, there was only one testing lab in the country. However, today, more than two and a half thousand labs are in operation. Initially, only a few hundred tests could be conducted in a day and now more than 20 lakh tests are being carried out in a single day. So far, more than 33 crore samples have been tested in the country. This huge task has been made possible only because of countless frontline workers engaged in the work of sample collection, going amidst infected patients, and taking their sample. To protect themselves, these warriors have to wear PPE kits continuously even in sweltering heat. After that the sample reaches the lab.
- Thousands of people like Prakash Kandpal (lab technician for the last 10 years in Institute of Liver and Biliary Sciences, Delhi)have been stationed in the labs for the last one year and have been doing such arduous work, saving innumerable people, about which the nation is getting to know today. Prakash ji, through you I, thank all the members of your fraternity. I thank you wholeheartedly on behalf of the countrymen.
- While at present we were discussing 'Corona Warriors', there also has been a very big role in this fight displayed by many such warriors across the country. This pandemic affected every system of the country. The agricultural sector protected itself from this crisis to a great extent. Not only did it keep itself safe, but the sector also progressed, moving forward. Even in this pandemic, our farmers have achieved record produce. The farmers produced record output and this time the country went on to procure record amount of crops. This time in many places farmers have got more than the minimum support price (MSP) for mustard. Due to the record food grain production, our country has been able to provide support to every countryman. Today, 800 million underprivileged denizens are being provided free ration in this hour of crisis.
- Today the farmers of our country are doing wonders in many areas by taking advantage of the new arrangements. Take for example, the farmers of Agartala. These farmers produce very good jackfruit harvest. Anticipating their demand in the country and abroad, this time the jackfruit of farmers of Agartala was brought to Guwahati by rail. These jackfruits are now being sent to London from Guwahati. Similar is the case with the Shahi Litchi of Bihar. In 2018, the Government gave GI Tag to Shahi Litchi so that its identity would be reinforced and the farmers would get more benefits. This time the Shahi Litchi of Bihar has also been sent to London by air. From East to West, North to South our country is full of such unique flavours and products. The Kisan Rail is ferrying hundreds of tons of Vizianagaram mangoes to Delhi. The people of Delhi and North India will get to eat Vizianagaram mangoes, and the farmers of Vizianagaram will earn well. The Kisan Rail has so far transported nearly 2 lakh tonnes of produce. Now the farmers are able to send fruits, vegetables, grains to other remote parts of the country at a very low cost.
- 30th May (the date of Mann Ki Baat broadcast)also marks the completion of 7 years of the government. Over these years, the country has followed the mantra of Sabka-Saath, Sabka-Vikas, Sabka-Vishwas'. All of us have worked every moment with dedication in the service of the country. Friends, whatever we have accomplished in these 7 years, it has been of the country, of the countrymen.
- Together, we have experienced many moments of national pride in these years. When we observe that now India moves ahead not with the thought and pressure of other countries but with her own conviction, then we all feel proud. When we witness that now India gives a befitting reply to those who conspire against us, then our confidence soars. When India does not compromise on the issues of national security, when the strength of our armed forces increases, we feel that yes, we are on the right path.
- In these 7 years, India has worked to show the world a new direction in digital transactions. Today, you can make digital payments with absolute ease at any place; it is proving very useful even in this time of Corona.
- Today, the seriousness and awareness of the countrymen towards cleanliness is increasing. We are also launching record satellites and constructing record roads too. In these 7 years, many old contestations of the country have also been resolved with complete peace and harmony. A new confidence of peace and development has arisen from the northeast to Kashmir.
- All this was possible because in these 7 years, more than as the Government or as the people, we worked together as one country. We worked as a team. We worked as Team India. Every citizen has tried to take a few steps forward in advancing the country. Where there are successes, there are also trials. In these 7 years together, we have overcome many difficult tests as well, and each time we have all emerged stronger.

the spread of the coronavirus through secondary transmission.

Waste management is essential in today's society. Due to an increase in population, the generation of waste is getting doubled day by day. Moreover, the increase in waste is affecting the lives of many people. There is an urgent global call to treat waste management as an essential public service. The efforts of the various international organisations, government agencies and research organisations working in the field of waste management in India have been admirable. There is a need for individual participation and actively civic participation to manage waste.

Waste management is a challenging, but ultimately fulfilling area of work to get into. Essentially, it's all about planning and managing schemes that help reduce the environmental impact of waste that is produced by human activity or industrial operations. With changing consumption patterns and rapid economic growth, it is estimated that urban municipal solid waste generation will increase to 165 million tonnes in 2030.

The concept of 'Waste Management' is a comprehensive one. It includes management - collection, treatment and disposal/recovery, reuse or recycling) of human waste, solid waste (including biodegradable and non-biodegradable refuse/trash/rubbish), waste water, sewage effluents, industrial wastes, and hazardous (such as hospital, chemical, radioactive, plastic or other dangerous) wastes.

Mahatma Gandhi once said, "Sanitation is more important than independence." In 2014, Prime Minister Narendra Modi started a campaign called the "Swachh Bharat Abhiyan" or "Clean India Mission." This campaign is helping people in creating awareness about how to improve waste management and apart from the government many NGOs are involved to make the mission successful.

Now the point is that how to manage the waste of different types? With industrialization the problem of waste management has been discussed widely and with the help of environmentalist and others, the government is working hard to make effective policy for the waste management and thus it has thrown an ample opportunity for the students to make career in this field.

Swachh Bharat Initiative, the Indian government's flagship program to deal with waste collection and its effective management, is expected to provide immense growth opportunities to various upcoming startups that are focusing on providing innovative solutions.

Waste Management (or waste disposal) includes the activities and actions required to manage waste from its inception to its final disposal. This includes the collection, transport, treatment and disposal of waste, together with monitoring and regulation of the waste management process.

Waste management is the managing of waste by disposal and recycling of it. Moreover, waste management needs proper techniques keeping in mind the environmental situations. For instance, there are various methods and techniques by which the waste is disposed of. Some of them are Landfills, Recycling, Composting, etc. Further more, these methods are much useful in disposing of the waste without causing any harm to the environment.

The main objectives of waste management are:

FRUITS AND VEGETABLES FOR HEALTH AND LONG LIFE

Many fruits and vegetables are seasonal and perishable. High losses during harvesting, transport and storage reduce the quantities available in shops and markets. Reducing food loss in the supply chain, strengthening the capacity of producer organisations and increasing investment in infrastructure can support post-harvest handling and distribution operations.

Declaring 2021 as the International Year of Fruits and Vegetables (IYFV) is an appropriate decision in the present COVID-19 situation all over the world. A group of senior scientists of the Global Indian Scientists and Technocrats (GIST) Forum have come forward to launch a revolution (Aahaar Kranti) on April 13, 2021. The objectives of Aahaar Kranti are to promote better awareness, better nutrition and better agriculture. It will educate the people about: values of Indian traditional diets, healing power of local fruits and vegetables and miracles of balanced diet. Aahaar Kranti will review on nutritionally balanced diets-UttamevamsantulitAahaar replete in locally available fruits and vegetables.

With the changing lifestyles and food habits, the importance of fruits and vegetables in the diet is being increasingly realized. 2021, International Year of Fruits and Vegetables provides countries and actors throughout the food system to spread knowledge about the nutritive values of fruits and vegetables. This will facilitate progress in moving towards a holistic approach that will contribute towards eliminating hunger and all other forms of malnutrition and towards achieving the sustainable development goals. At the end, it may be said: Choose your food wisely and enjoy your health proudly.

Six Indian Sites added to UNESCO World Heritage Tentative List

The Union Ministry of Culture in May announced that six Indian sites have been selected in the Tentative List of UNESCO World Heritage Site. These sites are temples of Kanchipuram in Tamil Nadu, Bhedaghat-Lametaghat in Narmada Valley, Satpura Tiger Reserve in Madhya Pradesh, Riverfront of the historic city of Varanasi, Uttar Pradesh, Megalithic site of Hire Benkal, Karnataka, and Maratha Military Architecture in Maharashtra. Currently, there are 1,121 Heritage Sites across the world and these six sites have joined the race of being included in the coveted World Heritage List.

What defines a world heritage?

UNESCO defines 'world heritage' as the designation for places on Earth that are of outstanding universal value to humanity. A world heritage can be of many types such as cultural, natural, mixed (cultural and natural), and movable heritage. Architectural works, works of monumental sculpture and painting, elements or structures of an archaeological nature, inscriptions, cave dwellings and sites and buildings important from the point of view of history, art, science, aesthetic, and anthropology are considered cultural heritage. Natural heritage consist of natural physical and biological formations or groups of such formations, geological and physiographical formations and precisely delineated areas which constitute the habitat of threatened species of animals and plants, and natural sites or precisely delineated natural areas that are important from a scientific, conservation, and aesthetic point of view. Those sites which satisfy a part or whole of the definitions of both cultural and natural heritage are considered as mixed cultural and natural heritage. Movable heritage may include books, documents, clothing, artefacts, artworks and historical, archaeological, philatelic, numismatic objects and also those related to science or technology. UNESCO also defines cultural landscapes which are cultural properties and represent the "combined works of nature and of man" and are illustrative of the evolution of human society and settlement over time, under the influence of the physical constraints and/or opportunities presented by their natural environment and of successive social, economic and cultural forces, both external and internal.

What is the World Heritage List?

According to UNESCO, what makes the concept of world heritage exceptional is its universal application, or 'Outstanding Universal Value'. World Heritage sites belong to all the people of the world, irrespective of the territory on which they are located. Outstanding Universal Value means cultural and/or natural significance which is so exceptional as to transcend national boundaries and to be of common importance for present and future generations of all humanity. As such, the permanent protection of this heritage is of the highest importance to the international community as a whole. Such places are thus inscribed on the World Heritage List to be protected for future generations to appreciate and enjoy. Places as diverse and unique as the Pyramids of Egypt, the Great Barrier Reef in Australia, Galápagos Islands in Ecuador, the Taj Mahal in India, the Grand Canyon in the USA, or the Acropolis in Greece are some examples of the places inscribed on the World Heritage List.

What is a Tentative List?

As per the UNESCO Operational Guidelines, 2019, a Tentative List is an inventory of those places or sites of a country which the nation state considers suitable for nomination to the World Heritage List. It is mandatory to put a site on the Tentative List before it is considered for the final nomination to the World Heritage List. With the addition of these six sites, India now has 48 sites in the Tentative List. As per the guidelines, a country can submit the World Heritage List nomination dossier after one year of a site being on the Tentative List. Tentative Lists are a useful and important planning tool for countries, and the World Heritage Committee and advisory bodies as they provide an indication of future nominations.

Which Indian sites are in the World Heritage List?

There are 38 World Heritage Sites of India in the list. Some of these are the Taj Mahal (Uttar Pradesh), Mahabodhi Temple Complex, Bodh Gaya (Bihar), Humayun's Tomb (Delhi), Ajanta and Ellora Caves (Maharashtra), Sundarbans National Park (West Bengal), Rock Shelters of Bhimbetka (Madhya Pradesh), Victorian Gothic and Art Deco Ensembles of Mumbai (Maharashtra), Mountain Railways of India (the Darjeeling Himalayan Railway, the Nilgiri Mountain Railway, and the Kalka-Shimla Railway), and Kaziranga National Park (Assam). Of these, 30 are cultural and seven are natural sites. One (Khangchendzonga National Park) is a mixed site.

Let's know more about the six sites recently included in the Tentative List

- Iconic Riverfront of the Historic City of Varanasi

One of the most ancient continuously living cities of the world, Varanasi is one of the highest embodiments of Indian culture and spirituality. Presently more well known as a microcosm of Hindu pilgrimage, the city has been a centre of learning and revere, spanning other religions including Buddhism, Jainism and Sikhism. Owing to the immense sacred value associated with the Ganga River, the 6.5 kilometre-riverfront forms the most iconic part of the city. The riverfront, that is the interface of the river with the land, encompasses the ghats (the steps leading to the river bank), the magnificent edifices towering above them, and the quaint alleys behind flanked with temples, mosques, palaces, havelis, kunds, akharas, gardens and gateways. As per archaeological excavations, the riverfront was also a centre of commercial activities. The stepped ghats are a unique Indian typology of an architectural interface of the river with the land, and the Varanasi Ghats are the most brilliant representation of this form.

- Temples of Kanchipuram

Kanchipuram was the capital of the Pallava dynasty which ruled present day state of Tamil Nadu from 6th to 9th century CE. The city finds a mention in ancient Sanskrit and Tamil literature. The ensemble of religious, cultural, social and political efflorescence for several centuries made Kanchipuram a vibrant centre of built heritage, particularly temples dedicated to Siva and Vishnu, in all more than one hundred and fifty temples. The 11 temples that have been identified under this nomination are The Rajasimhesvaram or Kailasanatha temple, Piravatnesvara temple, Iravathanesvara temple, Parameswara Vinnagaram or Vaikuntaperumal temple, Muketswara temple, Arulala or Varadharaja Perumal temple, Ekambaresvara temple (Thiruk-achiekambam), Jvaraharesvara temple, Pandava Dootha Perumal temple, Yathothkari Perumal temple, and Ulagalanda Perumal temple. Through the emergence of Bhakti movement under eminent saints of Saivisim and Vaishnavism, the temples became not only a structural edifice but also a vibrant institution of intangible heritage which has sustained for centuries. Several illustrious Buddhist scholars were also associated with this place.

EN Explains

- Hire Benkal, Megalithic Site

The word 'Megalith' has been derived from two Greek words 'megas' meaning great or large and 'lithos' meaning stone. Hire Benkalsite is located on top of castellated granite hillock within the zone of peninsular gneissic complex of the Dharwad series of rocks. The megaliths on the hill encompass an area of nearly 20 hectares. The site of Hire Benkal provides an exceptional insight into the funerary and ritual practices of the Iron Age (megalithic culture of Indian protohistory). The site consists of hundreds of megaliths (gigantic port-holed dolmens in majority) which are standing on mound for over 2,500 years. Another unique feature of Hire Benkal is prehistoric rock paintings. Majority of the paintings especially belong to overlapping period of Late Neolithic and Early Iron Age-Megalithic, i.e., c. 700-500 BCE. However, a few paintings from Mesolithic period have also been reported. The depictions in rock art from Hire Benkal provides clue about subsistence strategies (hunting), weapons used (spears, axes comparable to the one reported from megalithic excavated sites), fauna, etc. of the Iron Age.

- Bhedaghat-Lametaghat in Narmada Valley

Bhedaghat, often referred to as the Grand Canyon of India, is a town in the Jabalpur district of Madhya Pradesh. The site is well known for the outstanding beauty of marble rocks (dolomite) and their various morphological glittering forms on either side of the graceful Narmada river which flows through the gorge. The inimitable marbles of the Bhedaghat area have different shades like white, grey, pink and bluish grey giving additional beauty to the marble rocks. Several dinosaur fossils have been found in the Narmada valley particularly in Bhedaghat-Lametghat area. Bhedaghat is the only site where marble, phyllite, BIF, quartzite of the Mahakoshal group of Proterozoic age rocks have been recorded together. The Narmada River here falls into a 30-metre-deep gorge known as Dhuandhar Falls.

- Satpura Tiger Reserve

Satpura Tiger Reserve, located in Satpura ranges in Central India, is one of the major geographical plateaus of India. Satpura, meaning "seven folds", forms a watershed between Narmada and Tapti River. It is one of the oldest forest reserves with a well-established tradition of scientific management of forests. The site is of global significance in terms of tiger conservation. It has the largest tiger-occupied forest and it also has the largest tiger population. The Reserve is an excellent example of in situ conservation. It is the part of the largest contiguous forest and tiger habitat in India. It supports 17 per cent of India's tiger population and 12 per cent of its tiger habitat. Apart from this, twenty-six species of the Himalayan region and 42 species of Nilgiri areas are found here. It has many rare and endemic plants, especially bryophytes and pteridophytes. The site is of also of archaeological significance with more than 50 rock shelters with paintings that are 1,500 to 10,000 years old.

- Maratha Military Architecture (Serial Nomination)

Forts of Western India occupy an important place of significance in the political and architectural history of the region. While in the rest of India, the tradition of construction of forts appears sporadically in space and time, it displays a vigorous and continuous activity in the Western India for a period of nearly 1,800 years, starting sometime in the centuries immediately preceding the Common Era and continuing almost up to the 19th century. The 14 forts identified under this nomination are Raigad Fort, Shivneri Fort, Torna Fort, Lohagad, Salher Fort, Mulher Fort, Rangana Fort, Ankai-Tankai Fort, Kasa Fort, Sindhudurg, Alibag Fort, Suvarnadurg, and Khanderi Fort. The Maratha military landscape, developed during the period of Chhatrapati Shivaji Maharaj, represents a very interesting phenomenon in the Indian history which remains unparalleled for its military ingenuity. Apart from their architectural grandeur and scenic beauty, the innovation of connecting the forts into a single operational system of defence through a strategic military network exploiting the unique cultural landscape is what makes them unique.

As per UNESCO, a serial nomination is any nomination which consists of two or more unconnected areas. A single World Heritage nomination may contain a series of cultural and/or natural properties in different geographical locations, provided that they are related geographically, historically, culturally, biogeographically, or through their ecosystems.
